Brazil Official Urges Ouster of Castro Regime

Carlos Lacerda, a key man in the revolutionary government of Brazil, has called for elimination of the Castro regime from the community of the Americas.

Mr. Lacerda, governor of Guanabara state (Rio de Janeiro) and considered most likely to be Brazil's next President, told the National Press Club yesterday the presence of the Castro government in Cuba is "an insult and a danger to all of us."

His remarks indicated Brazil, which has not recently been in the fore-front of the ranks of Castro's enemies, might align itself with the United States for a hard resolution against Cuban of American States.

The OAS Council meets today to vote on a place and date for a session of hemisphere foreign ministers to take up Venezuela's complaint of subversive activity against Cuba.

Mr. Lacerda said the majority of the people of Latin America regretted that America had not acted quickly and successfully against the Castro government.
